OBIS OUTDOOR FUN and GAMES PATCH

Requirements: All age levels must complete 6 Activities from either the OBIS website or from OBIS booklets are available for check-out in the Resource Center.

OBIS is an outdoor program that offers young people fun and challenging opportunities to investigate ecological relationships in their local environment.

Outdoor Biology Instructional Strategies (OBIS) was developed in the 1970s at the Lawrence Hall of Science to help adults (teachers, parents, community leaders) take young people outdoors to experience ecological principles in their local area. The 97 OBIS activities, which increase environmental awareness, can be used individually or in combination. These simple experiences then act as a gateway for children and adults to explore and understand their local environment.
