Communicate It! Scenarios

CUT ALONG DASHED LINES.

Miss Mumbly: Umm . . . you know, it's kind of like, ummm, well, maybe . . . you umm don't need to have that ahhhh umm plastic umm bottle ahh all the time
(Hint: Speak in a low voice, look down, seem lost. Stop a lot between the words.)

Miss Unkind: Hey! Don't you see all that water running down the sink? What's wrong with you! You are so bad and wrong! (Hint: Be very loud and kind of scary.)

Miss 2Q (Too Quiet): You know people in Africa don't have enough water to drink. It would be really nice if we all saved more water. (Hint: Whisper and look down.)

Miss I Dunno: Water is important. I don't really remember why. I don't really get it. But it is, so just don't waste it, OK? (Hint: Act like you haven't learned anything!)

Miss Silent (Say Nothing): (What happens if you say nothing on behalf of Earth's water?)

Miss Gum Chewer: Chew away—loudly! While you say, “Water. We need to save it. Can you shut the faucet off, please!” (Hint: Pretend to be chewing gum—in a big way!)

Miss Messy: I have something really important to tell you about Earth's water. If we don't stop wasting it we're going to be in big trouble!
(Hint: Mess up clothes and hair . . . look like you just crawled out of bed.)

Miss Who Cares: Well, yesterday, I went shopping and got this great new shirt. And also, look, I have my own TV. I am having pizza for dinner. And oh, by the way, you really should do something about the water problem.

Miss Unbelievable: I like to carry my own plastic water bottle that is new from the store every day. I really need it. I also need to take really long showers and run the faucet when I brush my teeth. I just have to. But you—you really better not do stuff like this!
(Hint: Act like you don't have to help, but everyone else does!)
