

Reflection and Celebration

Once the Take Action Project is done, it's important to "debrief" and talk about the experience with your whole team. Think about:

- Your hopes for the project. What did you want to accomplish? Did you achieve it all?
- The steps. How did each one go?
- Your goal. Did you meet it? Did it change?
- Your teamwork. How'd you do together?
- Compare your project to the one in the "SuperShelterMakers" story.
Did you and the girls in the story follow through on all the Take Action steps?

Decide together how and when you want to celebrate this leadership journey.

Plan big, because you made the journey from...

Power of One to Power of Team to Power of Community and from...

Being Girl Scout Juniors to becoming

Agents of change!

Ideas for the Big Celebration

Hang a poster-size copy of your project chart in your gathering space and then:

SET ASIDE SOME TIME FOR REFLECTION.

If you could keep your project going, what would you continue? What would you change?

WRITE A COMMUNITY PROCLAMATION.

Write a proclamation to continue your commitment to the community. Frame it and present it to the organizers you teamed with.

CLAP YOUR HANDS AND SAY THANKS.

Each person gets a chance to stand up and say who she thanks for assisting her with this Take Action Project. After each name, clap your hands and say, "Yeah!" Make it as exciting and loud as you can! Make it a massive cheer! End, if you feel like it, with a mutual back patting and a friendship squeeze.

MAKE A PROJECT DAY SCRAPBOOK.

It's great to keep a record of all you've accomplished. Collect all your memories, photos, notes, and souvenirs in a project scrapbook. Then get together as a group and self-publish the book. Present it to each other, to your adult volunteer, and all the great people you partnered with.
